SUPER STARS OF 1920

WILL THEY STUB THEIR TOES IN 1921?

Here are a few of the crowned heads of the sport world. They all earned their titles in 1920 except Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight champ, who has successfully defended his headpiece twice. Notice that it is a little off-tilt since Bill Brennan played twelve rounds with him. Babe Ruth's hat is on tilt, and is likely to be for several years yet. Ted Ray may never defend his golf title. He's getting old. Man o' War has no more worlds to conquer. The great horse has earned over $240,000 for his owner, Samuel D. Riddle, in stakes and purses. Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey is only 18 years old. She ought to make more records in 1921. But all champions are liable to stub their toes and lose their crowns.

Hoppe.
Pocket Billiards—Ralph Greenleaf.
Billiards—Amateur—J. Howard Shoemaker.
Three-Cushion Billiards—John Layton, St. Louis, Mo.

Football.
East—No champion determined.
Midwest—Ohio State in western conference; Notre Dame outside of conference.
South—Georgia Tech.
Pacific Coast—California.
Professional—Akron, Ohio.
Soccer Football—Ben Millers, St. Louis.

LAUGH WITH US

Two suburban gardeners were swearing vengeance on cats.
"It appears to me," one said, "that they seem to pick out your choicest plants to scratch out of the ground."
"There's a big yellow tomcat," the other said, "that fetches my plants out and then sits and actually defies me."
"Why don't you hurl a brick at him?" asked the first speaker.
"That's what makes me mad," was the reply. "I can't. He gets on top of my greenhouse to defy me."

Old Brown and old Jones were discussing the terrible manner in which everything had gone up in price.
"Tea's gone up, bread's gone up, coal's gone up!" groaned the practical Brown.
"Yes, yes," replied Jones, listlessly. "Tobacco's gone up!" continued Brown. "Beer's gone up!"
"Beer!" echoed Jones. "Ah! I wish I had had more when it was not only the real thing, but cheaper!"

A booklover was seated in his library, surrounded by scattered volumes. Encouraged by the reports of discoveries of valuable fragments of manuscripts in other people's books, he was having a little search of his own. His small son was on the floor assisting.
"Father," said the child solemnly, suddenly breaking the silence, "does every book have a flyleaf?"
"Certainly," replied the father, "unless it has been torn out."
"Well," said the child, in a tone of deep concern, "I've just found a fly squashed on the wrong page!"

"Harry," exclaimed the blushing maiden, "this declaration of love is so sudden that I hardly know what to say. I was unprepared for it. It unnerves me."
"I was afraid it might," said the young druggist, rising with alacrity from his knees, "and I brought with me a bottle of unrivaled nerve tonic. This preparation, my darling, he added soothingly, as he took the bottle from his pocket, quickly extracted the cork, and poured a quantity of the medicine into a spoon he had also brought with him, will allay any undue excitement, quiet the nerves, aid digestion, and restore lost appetite. I sell it at $1 a bottle. This is a dose for an adult. Take it, dearest."

On one occasion a famous humorist was the guest of the Savage club in London. For the text of his after-dinner speech he chose the subject of "Honesty."
He related that when a mere boy he saw a cart laden with melons outside a store and nobody about.
On the spur of the moment he stole a melon and darted away.
"I soon got my teeth into that melon," said the humorist; "but instantly a queer sensation assailed me. My resolve was taken at once. I went back to that cart and I replaced the melon" (loud applause)—"and, and—I took a ripe one!"

Down in Virginia, where bears roam the woods, there once lived an old fellow whose wife made his life miserable. It was her custom to bounce skulls, bedsteads, pieces of stovepipe and scallions off the old man's head when she had nothing else to do. One day a neighbor rushed into the old man's yard and cried: "Jim, in a fight with a bear!" Not on your life! Jim replied, pulling at the stem of his cornucopia pipe. "That bear got himself into that fight and he can get out the best way he can."

A lawyer was cross-examining an old foreigner about the position of the doors, windows and so forth, in a house in which a certain transaction had occurred.
"And now," said the lawyer, "tell you me, and as to tell the court how the 'irs run'?"
"Designer thought for a minute, w the stars run?" he queried at last.
"repeated the lawyer, "how do

Very much Surprised.
Some time ago Mrs. Ella Wright, Chillicothe, Mo., was troubled with indigestion and had frequent bilious attacks. She procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets and was very much surprised at the quick relief which they afforded. (Adv.)
